FALL OF RIGA REPORTED IN STOCKHOLM

Nazi High Command Claims Troops Half Way Between Moscow And Old Frontier

STOCKHOLM (UP)—Swedish press reports today claimed that Riga, capital of Latvia, was occupied by German forces this morning.

The Swedish reports were based on a reported broadcast by radio Riga at 10 a. m. The newspapers said the radio broadcast a proclamation by a German officer announcing that the city of Riga had been occupied by German troops and issued greetings to "the freed Latvian people."

By UNITED PRESS

The German high command today claimed Nazi panzer forces have crashed through main Russian defenses on an 85 mile front along the Berezina river, almost halfway to Moscow from the frontier starting points of the offensive.

The high command located the spearheads of the Nazi advance at Borisov, 52 miles beyond Minsk on the Minsk-to-Moscow highway and about 350 miles from the Soviet capital, and Bobruisk, 105 miles inside old Russia and 85 miles south of Borisov.

The claims of the German high command indicated the armored forces of the Wehrmacht are now going into high gear, having cracked through the heavy fortifications which protected the old frontier of the Soviet union.

There was no Russian confirmation of the German claim of reaching Borisov — the most important single announcement of the Nazi high command — but the Russian communique did admit that battles are now raging around Bobruisk.

Of interest almost equal to the Nazi military drive was the apparent diplomatic gambit in the Far East. Announcement was made simultaneously in Tokyo, Berlin and Rome that the Axis and its satellite states of Rumania, Slovakia and Croatia had recognized the Japanese-sponsored Nanking regime in China.

Tokyo has not yet announced its attitude toward the Russo-German war, Tokyo indicated that the long-awaited announcement may now be forthcoming.

Should Japan attack Russia or threaten her, the spreading complications of warfare in the Pacific would bring the potential war front within cannon shot distance of U. S. territory at the Bering Straits and the likelihood of repercussions affecting American interests would be radically increased.

Walton Honn On Honor Roll

Pacific House Youth Cited For Navy Work, Recruiting Aide Reports

Walton Honn, Jr., of Pacific House, who enlisted in the Navy in the latter part of April, has been cited by his company commander as the honor man of the company for the week ending June 21st.

This is according to Chief Electrician's Mate A. R. Hill, who was in Placerville Tuesday from the recruiting offices at Sacramento, confirming earlier word of the honor won by Honn received direct from Naval officials by Mrs. Walton Honn, the young man's mother.

Chief Electrician's Mate Hill reports that the distinction won by Honn is earned by proficiency in drill and general outstanding qualities in Navy training.

Hill said that the Sacramento recruiting office is especially proud of knowing that one of the men recruited through that office has made such an excellent start in the Navy.

"This is one of a series of weekly visits which members of our recruiting staff will make to Placerville each Tuesday," Chief Electrician's Mate Hill said. "Someone will be here on Tuesday afternoons from twelve until three o'clock each week, and our offices will be Room 1 in the basement of the postoffice."

"The Navy is accepting enlistments in regular service for men in the 17 to 30-year age group. Men seventeen years old and not more

Visman Appointed To Farm Debt Board

Senator Dillinger Advised Of Return Of County Man To Adjustment Commission

State Senator H. E. Dillinger announced Tuesday he has received word from Sacramento of the appointment of Carl Visman, of the Fruit Ridge district, to be a member of the state Farm Debt Adjustment Commission.

Mr. Visman was formerly a member of the commission.

"The appointment of Mr. Visman to again be a member of the commission is a demonstration of the importance of the work of farm debt adjustment as recognized by state officials," Senator Dillinger said.

"Politically, Mr. Visman was first appointed to the commission during the administration of Governor Merriam. It is clear that in asking him to serve again, Governor Olson has deemed the work so important that he has stepped across party lines to enlist the services of a man all ready familiar with the work, who all ready has demonstrated his competency."

9,000,000 CANS OF FOOD ARE PURCHASED FOR ARMY USE

Material Alone, Without Expense Of Packing Or Handling, Represents Investment Of $836,660; Six Cans Per Day Per Soldier

FORT MASON, San Francisco—Even the thought of 9,000,000 cans of food may upset the stomach of a bridegroom already tired of tin can cooking, but these cans are anticipated to cause lots of lip-smacking by American soldiers in the field. Because the robust selectee, guardsman and "regular" in Uncle Sam's Army at times welcomes the sight of a tin can. He particularly welcomes the tin can if it contains a field ration, and that is the content of this big order, purchase of which has been announced from Washington, D. C., by the war department.

Purchased by the Quartermaster Corps as one of the largest food procurements of this kind ever made, the 9,000,000 cans contain Army reserve ration known as "Type C Field Ration." This field ration is the food supply devised by the Quartermaster Corps to prevent miss-meal discomforts for soldiers separated from their mess hall or field kitchen.

Exclusive of handling and packing, total cost was $836,664.67 for the 9,000,000 cans of prepared food. This is an example of the subsistence buying done by the Quartermaster Corps at procurement centers such as that directed at the San Francisco General Depot, Fort Mason, by Col. F. J. Riley, Quartermaster Supply Officer.

In the Type C Field Ration, the allowance of food for one soldier for one day is contained in six cans and provides a different menu for each meal. Three of the cans contain a main course of meat with choice of beans, vegetable hash or vegetable stew. Each of the other three cans contain five biscuits, three lumps of sugar, soluble coffee and a bar of chocolate for dessert.

Lions Have Spent $600 In Child Welfare Since March Of 1939

Placerville Lions Club has assisted sixty-nine individuals in its child welfare program at a cost of $600 since March of 1939. This is according to a report of the club at its luncheon meeting Tuesday by Woodward Fox, child welfare chairman.

Lion Fox reported that during the past year the club has assisted in thirteen cases at a cost of $124. These included seven dental cases, two cases in which glasses were acquired, and four cases in which tonics were removed.

The question of continuing the program was referred to the club's directorate for further study and report.

Lion President Ben Larson presided at the meeting which was devoted exclusively to business, except that the club digressed from this program long enough to welcome Lion Max Baer, who has been absent owing to illness the past few weeks. John Raffetto, membership chairman, reported the club has a 75 ed eleven new members during the year and had lost sixteen. The club's membership at present is 66 active members with one member at large.

Loren Atwood, attendance chairman, reported the club has a 75 per cent attendance average for the year which is a gain of five percent over the year before. Arthur Mart, secretary, has not missed a Lions Club meeting for 259 meetings.

Other reports included an announcement by Wallace M. Ripley calling attention to the community patriotic decorations contest, announcements of the progress of plans for the Soap Box Derby on July 20th, and the reports of Lion President Larson and Lions Mart, Hensley and Barker on their attendance at the recent district convention, at Los Angeles.

7 Selectees Report In 13th Draft

All Of Men Listed For July 11th Call Are Under 28 Years Old

El Dorado County will supply seven selectees in the thirteenth draft call on July 11th, it was announced Tuesday morning at the headquarters of the county selective service board.

The men are Robert Brown, Edwin G. Peri, Bruce G. Gordon, Theodore P. Jensen, Walter G. Brown, Victor G. Lundeen and Pete Carollo.

They are to report at the direction of the selective service board at the Sacramento induction center.

A check-up at the selective service headquarters as to the ages of the men revealed that all of the seven are under 28 years of age. It was recalled that there is some legislation in Congress indicating a possibility of deferment for men 28 years and older.

Whether the circumstance that the men reporting from El Dorado County for the thirteenth call are less than 28 years of age indicates anticipation that the 28-year deferment may be approved by Congress, was not learned.

TEMBLOR HITS COASTAL AREA

Santa Barbara Reports Some Damage; Shock is Felt In Los Angeles

SANTA BARBARA (UP)—A strong earthquake violently shook the Santa Barbara coastal area at midnight, damaging business buildings and slightly injuring one person.

The temblor came 16 years and a day after the disastrous shock of June 29, 1925, when 23 persons were killed and property damage was counted in the millions.

A strong sideward shock struck at 11:53 p. m. It smashed scores of store windows, cracked plaster and toppled bricks from shop facades. At least four distinct quakes, less severe in intensity, followed the first.

Four water mains were severed, a section of the city was plunged into darkness by disrupted electric power lines, and telephone connections were temporarily cut off.

One unidentified person was treated at Cottage Hospital for a hand injury resulting from broken glass.

The quake caused damage over a 30-mile area along the Pacific. At Carpinteria, 12 miles south of Santa Barbara, the corner of a hardware store collapsed. Windows were broken at Goleta and paradise, north of here, and as far south as Ventura, a distance of 27 miles along the coast highway.

Sidewalks and street pavements were cracked in several places. Clocks stopped and plaster cracked in the Santa Barbara News-Press building.

The quake, although felt over hundreds of square miles, diminished in intensity east and south of Santa Barbara. In San Fernando Valley sections of Los Angeles, 100 miles southeast of here, the quake was strong enough to awaken residents from their sleep and cause hundreds of telephone calls to police and sheriff's offices.

The downtown business sections of Los Angeles and Hollywood swayed in an undulating motion for approximately 20 seconds. Long Beach, scene of a severe earthquake in 1933, felt a gentle swaying motion. Santa Ana reported feeling the shock, but it was not noticeable in San Diego, 220 miles south of Santa Barbara. Bakersfield, 100 miles northeast, and San Luis Obispo, 100 miles north, barely felt the tremor.

Mrs. Avery is a graduate of the University of California and has recently been a member of the Oakland high school faculty. Her husband attended school at Roseville and is a graduate of the College of the Pacific, at Stockton.

Peace Officers Shift About

Resignation In County Staff Makes Vacancy In City Police Force

George Morgan ended his service as a deputy in the sheriff's office Monday evening and D. W. LeBourveau moved over Tuesday morning from the city police to fill the vacancy.

LeBourveau's post as city traffic officer has been filled by the assignment of Earl McCall to the traffic work and the employment of Orville Reinohl to take the place of McCall, who had been walking a beat.

Mr. Morgan returns to his home at Georgetown, where he has purchased a general store business.

In revealing his resignation, Morgan said he had thoroughly enjoyed his work in the sheriff's office and indicated he would have been content to continue in that work, except for the opportunity to get into business for himself in his old home town.

Reinohl, the new police officer, was employed several months ago in the city works department.

LOCHINVAR IN RAGS

CHAPTER XXXVI
"WHAT!" exclaimed Edith, in response to Isolde's startling announcement. Julie said nothing, but she sank down on the steps limply.

Isolde smiled triumphantly. "I've got the deed signed, sealed, and delivered—right here in my hand-bag. A million-dollar ranch for a measly two thousand in cash. How's that for smart business?"

"The Bar-X?" Edith was frowning. "Barry Caldwell's ranch? But it's worthless!"

"Oh, no, my dear," Isolde said airily. "The noted mining engineer, Mr. Normandy Buford, is even now hard at work rediscovering a gold vein worth a fortune. Won't he feel like a prize idiot when he returns and finds out he's been opening up a mine on my property?"

Julie still hadn't said anything. She couldn't. She was struggling to straighten things out in her mind. So this explained Isolde's interest in Barry! Somehow she had discovered Normandy's secret.

Was it possible that Kenneth had misinterpreted the scene between Barry and Isolde in the Pol Parrot? Had Isolde merely been using her wiles on Barry in order to gain possession of the ranch? Renewed hope thrummed in Julie's heart. If that was the case, Barry might not be lost to her, after all!

SHE heard Edith asking, "What is all this talk about a gold vein and Normandy? Have you lost your mind?"

Isolde laughed. "Not I, my dear Edith. Unless turning a smart deal is evidence of insanity."

"But what's it all about?" Edith persisted.

Isolde's eyes were mocking. "It's quite simple. You'd better tell Normandy not to leave his mail lying around to be read, the next time he goes on the trail of a gold mine! It was like taking candy from a baby!"

"Where," asked Julie, "is Barry?"

Isolde shrugged. "I don't know and I don't care. Of all the poky ticks I ever saw, he takes the cake! I practically threw myself into his arms last night—putting over this deal—and all he could think of was going to the rescue of some pianist who had got herself in a jam and was in jail. I had to go to the police station with him and he came out and rushed off to the Cosmopolitan Hotel like a crazy man, looking for her. She had already been released."

"S-a-a-y!" Isolde suddenly paused, and frowned at Julie. "You were that pianist, weren't you?"

Julie nodded, her eyes averted. Everything was all right! Barry still loved her! He had gone to her rescue! Her heart was so overflowing with happiness over this realization that she forgot all about the trick Isolde had played on Barry in regard to the ranch.

"You're certainly a swell guest! You've got a nerve to come back here and tell us all this."

"I'm just staying long enough to pack my things," Isolde told her. "Don't think I want to stay around here a minute longer than I have to. I'm headed back for New York and the bright lights—where men know how to make love and aren't so darned slow a girl has to light a fire under them! You can keep your Kims and your Barry!"

"That," said Kenneth's voice from the house doorway, "is just fine! I think we can rock along without you!"

Isolde laughed mockingly, then went up the steps and into the house without another word.

THE END.

TYDINGS OPPOSES JACKSON'S NOMINATION FOR SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON, (U.P.)—Sen. Millard E. Tydings, D., Md., today opposed the nomination of Attorney General Robert Jackson to the supreme court on the ground that he is "unfitted by character, philosophy, and judicial temperament" for the high office.

Tydings based his accusation in Jackson's failure to prosecute two Washington newspaper columnists for criminal libel in connection with a radio broadcast in which they mentioned Tydings in what he described as libelous language. The columnists were Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen.

Stewart Asks:

Why Let Hitler Monopolize Fifth Column?

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WHY let Herr Hitler have a monopoly of fifth columnizing? Why shouldn't the democracies fifth columnize against him reciprocally? He'd be very vulnerable to it, according to plenty of reports the state department receives from Europe.

It stands to reason that the countries he has conquered would be tremendously susceptible to it—Poland, Holland, Belgium, Denmark, Norway, Greece. There also are the countries that he hasn't had to conquer forcibly, having scared 'em into subjectivity. Yugoslavia, Rumania, Bulgaria. There's France, too. Its Vichy government is turning more and more pro-Axis, but the French rank and file aren't, to a certainty. Even the Vichy aren't sincere, of course, with the possible exception of a few individuals, like Pierre Laval and Admiral Darlan—and the admiral's more anti-English than he is pro-German.

The attitude of General de Gaulle's Free French, actually fighting alongside the British against the Axis, speaks for itself. Furthermore, news comes from William D. Leahy, our diplomatic envoy in Vichy, that he's simply deluged with letters from ordinary citizens of both unoccupied and occupied France, denouncing the Axis and the Vichy government for collaborating with it. A lot of 'em are said to be "form letters," indicating that this correspondence campaign is regularly organized, and it's obvious how strongly their authors must feel, or they wouldn't have the nerve to mail 'em.

And Italy appears to be ripe for fifth columnizing. The fact is that, evidently, the Italians are as much conquered by the Nazis as the French or the Dutch or the Poles are, and it's becoming quite apparent that they realize it. Some good fifth columnists might stir 'em up to turning mighty ugly.

Possibility in Russia

Russia, while of course anything but democratic, shows signs of increasing anti-Nazi-ism. Fifth columnists perhaps could do a bit of useful tinkering in Soviet-dom's midst. It hardly could do anything toward undermining Joe Stalin, but it could split him off from Herr Hitler, and then the pair could be attended to separately.

If Adolf isn't headed off in the meantime, the chances are that, long long, he'll annex Dictator Franco of Spain as a partner. Senor Franco, though, is bitterly hated by approximately half, at least, of his fellow Spaniards. Competent fifth columnizing ought to succeed in stirring up a revolt against him, forestalling a junction between himself and the Kaiser.

And finally there are pretty dependable rumors that there's considerable discontent with Adolf right in Germany. It's frightfully undercover necessarily, but fanning it, if possible, would be extremely advantageous.

It's hard to recall now, but it's of record that there were liberty-loving Germans who, long ago, resented kaiserism, which wasn't nearly as bad as Nazi-ism, and came over here to the United States to get away from it. I've wondered if this spirit has entirely evaporated and have consulted several very reliable sources on the subject, with resultant assurances that the old sentiment is still simmering—only, today, there practically is no place for the malcontents to emigrate to, as there was when we welcomed our Carl Schurz and General Sigels, back in the 1840's.

So why, right in the Fatherland, wouldn't some intensive fifth columnizing be beneficial?—though there's no denying that it would be darned risky.

The adverse argument is that, at this stage of the world, about a corporal's guard of machine gunners, faithful to a dictator, can oppress a popular uprising against him, no matter how sizable the would-be revolt.

Remember Russia?

Yet I can remember when a revolution in czarist Russia was ascribed an equally hopeless future. It occurred, nevertheless, to be sure, it didn't result in any movement. It was pulled off, the same. And it might have been a good thing if the Muscovites hadn't been so uncivilized.

Anyway, Herr Hitler's regime rears on a sea of what must be such bottomless furious hostility to him that it can't but require a big enough storm to swamp him.

And HIS fifth columnists have been successful enough at blowing up comparatively local storms to suggest that a sufficient number of democratic ones, blowing in HIS direction, should create a tempest I'll send him to the bottom.

Creating him by a method that I invented would be humorous.

VOICE OF EDWIN BOOTH PRESERVED IN RECORDING FILED IN ORATORICAL MUSEUM; DISCOVERY OF ANCIENT CYLINDER IS RECOUNTED

By LANING HUMPHREY

United Press Staff Correspondent

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., (UP)—The voice that helped make Edwin Booth the leading tragic actor of the late 19th century is being heard again.

Long silenced by death, it has been re-created through a chance tireless collaboration of a Harvard specialist in public speaking and a rare type of artistically-minded laboratory technician.

Prof. Frederick C. Packard, Jr., recounted the story behind the resurrection.

One day, some five years ago, he was seated in Holden Chapel, which constitutes a workshop and oratorical museum of which he is collector and curator, when a stranger approached.

"Did you know," the stranger inquired, "that recordings were once made of the voice of Edwin Booth?"

This being a long-regretted loophole in his extensive collection, Packard was immediately excited, and somewhat skeptical. He was soon reassured, however, when the stranger identified himself as the great actor's grandson, Edwin Booth Grossman.

Unfortunately, the only information Grossman could supply was the fact that in March, 1890, just before his retirement from the stage, the actor made a series of wax records on one of Edison's primitive "talking machines."

Fascinated by the prospect that this new idea of wax cylinders would enable him in Chicago to transport his voice to his daughter, Edwin, in New York, Booth devoted several days to reciting down the throat of a curious tin horn.

Describing his adventure in a letter to Edwin, he wrote:

"I recited Othello's speech for you . . . but of course it is impossible (for me at least) to recite with full feeling and warmth of expression in cold blood, as it were."

For several years after Booth's death, the fragile records were played on special occasions, but at length it was decided that they might literally be "played out." So they were carefully put away—so carefully, in fact, that Packard had to devote months of painstaking search with uncertain guidance by the hazy recollections of contemporaries and relatives of the actor, before he finally found them. Swathed in cotton batting, the wax cylinders were unearthed among long-forgotten personal effects in the living quarters which Booth reserved in the mansion he donated as a home for actors and which now is the Players Club of New York.

To prevent further wearing away of the original sound tracks, Packard had the old cylinder duplicated by an electrical casting process. It was now possible to study the problems involved in re-recording by modern disc methods.

With infinite patience, Packard and a laboratory technician manipulated electric sound-recording devices until they had preserved the salient characteristics of Edwin Booth's voice and obscured extraneous sounds produced by the antiquated original recording.

Critics who have heard the recreation of a contemporary reviewer of Booth's acting that his voice—a pleasant baritone of medium pitch—"was a rich and beautiful instrument upon which he played with great skill."

The recording is a reading from Shakespeare's "Othello," Act 1, Scene 3, in which the Moorish soldier defends himself before the Venetian Senate against charges of having seduced Desdemona, daughter of Senator Brabantio.

To the great surprise of those who would have expected an actor of the old school to give way to rant and bombast, his recording reveals a restrained, polished, naturalistic delivery generally associated with the best of modern technique of the stage.

ENLISTED RESERVE CORPS WILL BE CALLED TO ACTIVE DUTY EARLY IN AUGUST; GROUP INCLUDES SOME FORMER CMTC MEN

All qualified members of the enlisted reserve corps in the Ninth Corps Area who were enlisted prior to June 1, 1941, will be called to active duty in the army early in August, it was announced at the headquarters of Major General Ernest D. Peek, Commanding General of the Ninth Corps Area, at the Presidio of San Francisco, California.

The Enlisted Reserve Corps comprises persons eligible for enlistment in the Regular Army who have had certain military or technical training and entitled voluntarily for three years. Most of them are former members of the Reserve Officers Training Corps and of the Citizens' Military Training Corps who did not complete the requirements for commissions in the Officers' Reserve Corps. It differs from the Regular Army which comprises former Regular Army enlisted men and members of which have been on active duty since February.

Members of the Enlisted Reserve Corps with dependents may be discharged on application and presentation of an affidavit of dependency. Members whose tours of enlistment will expire in less than one full year from August 1, 1941, will not be called to active duty. They will not be discharged but will remain on inactive status pending further instructions.

Each member of the Enlisted Reserve Corps shortly will receive a letter notifying him that it is contemplated calling him to active duty shortly after August 1, 1941; that upon call to active duty he is subject to fulfillment of the unexpired term of his present enlistment; that his baggage will be limited to one suitcase; that privately owned automobiles will not be brought to initial stations; of procedure to secure government transportation to reception centers; of procedure to obtain discharge for dependency; and various other pertinent information.

Draft Brings Him Out

Ten years ago his family refused to buy him a new suit, so John Kelch, then 18, vowed he never would leave the house again. He kept his word until draft authorities came looking for him. They found him and compelled him to register.

mento; and Floyd E. Singleton, of Placerville. All were born in the month of May in the year 1920.

The United Press reports from Washington that approximately 600,000 of the 16,000,000 registered Oct. 16 are now in the army. But a large proportion of the 21-year-old registrants are expected to qualify for military training because fewer of them have dependents or physical disabilities.

No date has been set for the lottery which will determine the order in which the new registrants will be drafted. Officials said it probably would be held in the last two weeks of the month. They estimated that no more than 1,000 numbers would be drawn, and that the drawing would be completed in about two hours. The first lottery October 29 required about 17 hours.

President Roosevelt has issued an executive order authorizing the induction of 900,000 selectees during the fiscal year beginning today.

A bill awaiting congressional action would permit the deferment of all men 2 years or older. In addition, Brig. Gen. Lewis Hershey, deputy selective service director, has instructed the local boards to defer all married men and others making "any substantial contributions" to the support of dependents. The order also applies to men in that category who already have been classified as immediately available.

They squeeze Petroleum to get better orange juice

In orange groves, a gas is "injected" into irrigation water and carried to the roots of the trees to make bigger, sweeter, juicier oranges. Because scientists at the "University of Petroleum," Shell's $3,500,000 research laboratories, "squeezed" a petroleum gas and got hydrogen. This they combined with nitrogen to make excellent fertilizer (Shell NH₃).

Simple? Hardly that. Nor was it simple to combine the right molecules from petroleum and make synthetic rubber, glycerine, explosives — or the new Solutized Shell Gasoline.

Try a tankful of research genius . . . NEW Solutized SHELL

Two scientific factors advance the Road Performance Rating of the new Shell Gasoline to an all-time high:

1. It is refined with the Solutizer Process (Shell research laboratories' Patent No. 2,149,379). This steps up performance by removing the "pro-knock mercaptans."

2. Thermal conversion makes it extra rich in iso-compounds similar to iso-octane—first produced commercially by Shell scientists to give America 100-octane aviation gasoline.

Your Shell dealer now has new Solutized Shell (at regular price) and Shell Premium—try a tankful today!

ON THE SPOT

By Jack Sords

Today's Sport Parade

NEW YORK. (UP) — It would be nice to say that the crowd at the Polo Grounds tonight is going to maintain a fine sportsman-like attitude of benevolent neutrality during the passage at arms between welterweight champion Fritz Zivic and Al Davis, but actually a blood-thirsty collection of customers will be hoping that Davis gets his brains scrambled.

A group of the pugilistic literati, as the fight writers style themselves, were sitting around debating the question of who was the most unpopular fighter ever to appear in a New York ring. One bloc held out for Jack Sharkey, the Boston sailorman who, in truth took an awful going over every time he crawled through the ropes. There was no one particular reason why Sharkey collected such a bumper crop of raspberries, but it's true that the mere sight of him infuriated the customers.

A majority, including yours truly, thought that Davis should be awarded the poison ivy laurel. There may be 30,000 persons in the Polo Grounds tonight. And 29,992 will be there on the off-chance that Zivic will knock Davis into the bleachers. Platoons are being organized among the bleacherites to kick Davis around a bit if he lands among them.

Nothing but a 21-jewel, 16-cylinder hatred for Davis would explain the advance demand for tickets. It is a 12-round affair and Zivic's title will not be at stake. The bout is likely to be filled with in-fighting, which doesn't look like much from the back rows. And there is always a chance that Davis will left hook his way to a victory, in which case there may be a riot.

Davis is a tough kid from the Brownsville section of Brooklyn where anybody who can't open a can of tomatoes with his teeth is considered a softy. He has an Eric Von Stroheim swagger and a Boris Karloff sneer, which have helped him achieve the unpopularity championship. He already had two legs on that championship when he went in the ring to fight Zivic last November, but that night he won permanent possession.

He fouled Zivic so often he was barred for life by the New York Boxing Commission. The commission relented and allowed Davis to come back because a share of the proceeds will go to the army relief fund.

Davis claims he threw the low punches because Zivic was sticking thumbs into his eyes—a mode of combat that is frowned upon in Marquis of Queensberry circles. Far be it from me to deny that Zivic adopted Britain's slogan of "thumbs up" that night, for he is a fairly tough customer, too, and easily riled. But the boxing fans decided that Davis was the villain of the piece and waited patiently for their chance to unload a record cargo of raspberries on him.

That chance came that night of the Louis-Conn fight. Davis joined the army after the commission had barred him and when he entered the ring to be introduced the other evening he was swathed in olive drab. He appeared in the role of patriot, and he greeted the customers with a snappy salute. So did they relent and cheer him? They did not. They booed him so loudly that he beat a retreat to his ringside seat.

The customers are well rested from that demonstration and will be in fine voice tonight. If your windows start rattling around 10 o'clock Eastern Daylight Time, just think nothing of it. It will be Davis getting the business.

JOE DIMAGGIO BREAKS CONSECUTIVE HITTING RECORD FOR 42 GAMES

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Joe DiMaggio, who set a modern major league batting record by hitting safely in his 42nd consecutive game, was determined today to stretch his streak so far as to defy all challengers.

The slugging New York Yankee outfielder carved himself a niche in baseball's hall of fame yesterday with two healthy swats—a two-bagger in the first game of a double-header with the Washington Senators and a single in the nightcap—to tie and break the old mark of 41 games set by George Sisler, former St. Louis Browns first baseman, in 1922.
